For Courage Walks with Us (2014, October) Scott Anthony chose to work with a talented Saskatchewan crew: Rich McFarlane (SCMA guitarist-of-the-year 2002-....), Gent Laird (bass player for Alexis Normand among others), Glenn Ens (percussion for everyone), and Ross Nykiforuk (producer for Deep Dark Woods, Sheepdogs, and worked with Northern Pikes). Scott Anthony was a Finalist in the 2014 Singer-Songwriter Mentor Contest sponsored by the Songwriters Association of Canada for The Chronoscope Trips. This new CD is a diverse collection of songs about parallel universes, Canadians' love/hate relationship with winter and walking with courage in stilettos!

Brian Greene, physicist and “superstring” theorist, published The Hidden Reality: Parallel Universes and the Deep Laws of the Cosmos (2011). I read it and was thankful for the everyday explanations that preceded the complex mathematical ones. More than anything I was intrigued with the implications about our assumptions about matter. If the amount of matter is fixed, then there are, necessarily a set number of combinations in which it may be arranged (as I understand it). So, it is possible that there is more than one universe existing, more than one me, and more than one you, right now. This concept became fodder for the lead track...Parallel lives can confound you...In the temporary ether of love's warm embrace, is this all it comes down to: You and I in this time and place? And with each missing thought that searches for a believer, the Chronoscope Trips...
